REGULATORY COMPETITIVENESS SERIES 2018

The increasing costs of regulatory compliance and uncertainty affects Canadian businesses of all sizes in all sectors and is a significant barrier to improving Canada's competitiveness.

In 2018, the Canadian Chamber of Commerce will profile key regulatory challenges throughout the year in a new series of regulatory reports. These individual reports will be tied to our ongoing advocacy for regulatory reform in Canada. In addition to the specific advocacy work that would be undertaken for each of the individual reports, sponsors will get visibility in the overall series given that each topic will be used as a case study for the final summary report.

Series topics

- Cumulative competitive impacts of climate policy
- Oversight of Indigenous-business relationships
- Agri-food sector competitiveness
- The Impacts of Increasing Transportation Costs

We are also gauging sponsor interest in additional reports on topics including:

- Autonomous vehicle regulation
- Interprovincial regulatory alignment
- Regulatory cooperation through CETA
- Regulatory barriers to entrepreneurship
- Uncertainty in the resource industry
- Privacy regulation
- Financial services regulation
- Increasing federal user fees

These challenges will be examined and profiled in the following manner:

- Each issue will be profiled in a concise report (3-6 pages)
- Targeted consultation strategy sessions with sponsors, business representatives and experts
- A project-specific website that will provide examples of the key challenges and provide profile for series sponsors

- Briefing of the chamber network on the report
- A wrap-up release report in early 2019
- Post-launch advocacy meetings with government officials and/or parliamentarians
